

Clinical Trials Liability Coverage

Companies developing new lifesaving or life-sustaining products face the challenge of conducting clinical trials in multiple countries outside the United States. To do so, they must have in place local clinical trial coverage which conforms to each country’s local insurance regulations, compulsory clinical trial laws, and ethics committee mandates.

Our international team is here to help. When placing business through Berkley Life Sciences, life science companies and their brokers are assured that their unique clinical trial needs have been addressed without any jurisdictional-specific insurance concerns.

Listed below are the many countries where we have the capacity to offer local clinical trial insurance coverage. We continue to increase our global footprint, allowing us to assist our insureds as they expand internationally. Reach out to your Life Science Specialist for the most up-to-date list of country capabilities.
